HOME CIRCLE

d. A mighty defense for a young man is a good home. Some of our readers look back with tender satisfaction to their early home. It may have been rude and rustic, hidden among the hills, an architect or upholsterer never planned nor adorned it. But all the fresco on princely walls never looked so enticing to you as those rough hewn rafters. You can think of no park or arbor of trees planted on a fashionable country seat planted on a fashionable country seat so attractive as the plain brook that run in front of the old farm house and sang under the weeping willows. No barred gateway, adorned with statue of bronze, and swung open by obsequious porter in full dress, has half the glory of the old swing gate. Many of you have a second dwelling place, your adopted home, that also is sa-cred forever. There you built the first family altar. There your children were born. All those trees you planted. That room is sacred, because, once in if the hot pillow, flapped the wing of death. Under that roof you expect, when your work is done, to lie down and die. You try with many words to tell the excellency of the place, but you fail. There is only one word in the English language that can describe your feeling. It is gather at least ocacsionally and just talk things over.

A wonderful living room—a cheering grate fire—sofa—soft, comfortable chairs—a foot-rest or two—a few good books some nice pictures hanging on the walls—a few letters lying on the reading desk—a reading lamp and still some people would let these things remain in a home without be-ing used while they drift off down town or to the club seven nights a

There is no attempt at sermonizing in this editorial—but people will find out sconer or later that when they fall to consider home to a real place to live in they lose con on on of life's big things.

Oh where is my wandering boy to night?" has been sung thousands of times with wonderful tenderness and pathos, but how many of the singers or hearers, ever gave heed to the per-inent inquiry of the song? Statistics are frequently published showing th creat majority of our boys spending their nights away from the better influences of home. As they grow into grow into the world and worldly ways. If the singer's plaintive question could be answered publicly in any ordinary meeting where the sc is sung, it would cause a tremendou sensation, and many a heart would bow down in sorrow and pain. Fo some reason it is just as well that the nightly haunts of "the boys" are not specifically mentioned in local public meetings, and yet the matter s one of common report.
